MONSTER REDWOOD TREES. Shey Compose a Most Remarkable Timber

Belt. One of the most remarkable timber belts in the world stands in Humboldt and Mendocino counties, California. It embraces 4,125 square miles, contain-ing 132,000,000,000 feet of timber. With the aid of the microscope scientists bave sound the age of some of these trees to be nearly 3,000 years. Some of the fallen trees have remained where they fell for 800 to 1,000 years, so it is estimated, with scarcely any deterioration of the wood.

Eastern tourists in California know but little of these redwoods (Sequoia sempervirens). They usually see the few mammoth redwoods of Calaveras (Sequoia gigantea) and go home and tell their friends about this disappearing tribe of giants. The lumber redwoods of Humboldt are less talked about, yet one of its trees will yield 100,000 feet of boards, and fill a freight train with

Felling these trees, which are 150 to 250 feet high, is a fine art acquired only by the most expert chopper. He must have excellent judgment as to the "lean" of the tree, and other peculiarities which may affect the direction of its fall. He drives a stake 100 or 150 feet from the base of the tree, and prepares a level bed in a direct line from base to stake, and on that line the tres must fall. An ax kerf is then made on the side where the tree is to fall. The apex of the obtuse triangle made by this kerf points exactly to the distant

The tree is cut one-third through with the ax. On the other side of the tree, opposite the ax kerf, a saw kerf is started. This is done by boring two holes horizontally and driving in wooden pins on which the 12 to 20-foot saw rests until the kerf is sufficiently deep to steady the saw. Broad, thin iron wedges are driven in after the saw to prevent the doomed tree from pinching at. At each end of this saw "ears" are bolted on, which can be removed and the saw withdrawn in case of trouble. Wedges are made to follow the saw until the wood dividing the saw kerf from the axkerf is narrowed to a width where wedges can be made to force the tree, with all its great weight, to lean in the direction in which it is to fall.

The tree is toppled over, and so exact as the chopper's work and calculation that almost invariably the falling trunk drives the stake aimed at when operations were begun. Any error in the fall of the tree is likely to cause the tree to break and cost the lumberman more than the chopper's wages for the month—$125. These virgin forests are so densely timbered that, if cleared at once, there would not be room enough on the ground for the trunks. "Peelers" follow the choppers. With long steel bars, flattened at one end, they pry off the thick bark and Then comes the cross-cut saw man, who cuts the tree into logs. These are transported to the saw mills by rail, cut into boards and shipped to market.

Redwood is so free from resinous matter that it will not burn readily. When fired it chars. The immunity from fire of towns built of redwood lumber is remarkable. Large conflagrations are unknown. This lumber shrinks so very little that it is used by builders in a green state. The beauty of the wood for finishing work is marked, as it frequently has a curly face and also a bird's-eye grain. This redwood promises to be a popular wood in the eastern states. - Boston Travel-

INDIANS LOVE GAMBLING.

They Will Bet Big Sums, Even on the Death of a Friend. The gambling instinct among Indians seems rather to be increased than otherwise by civilization, and more than one Cherokee who drew at Tahlequah recently for himself, his wife and his children quite a large sum of money in full discharge of his personal interest in the Cherokee strip came near losing every dollar of it before returning home. One day when the distribution was exceptionally heavy two very speculative recipients were standing together near the post office. A boy was seen coming along the street on a bucking pony. For so young a boy he held his seat well, but it seemed exceeding probable to the onlookers that before he got the pony home he would either be thrown or would have to get off. The two Indians discussed the proposition with much excitement, and finally one man bet the other the entire government per capita that the boy would be thrown before he get past them. The bet was accepted with vicious eagerness, and as they watched the antics of the pony as it whirled round, bucked, sat down on its haunches, and did everything else that was ever known to a trick horse, they almost came to blows in the excitement of their argument. Finally the horse, despairing of any other means of getting rid of its rider, leaped in the air and fell on its side, knocking half the life out of the boy, and then rolling completely over him. An altereation, of course, followed as to which had won the bet. The plucky boy hung on to the horn of his saddle, although apparently fatally injured. He neither fell off nor got off, but was lifted off the furious animal by half a dozen men who rushed quickly to the rescue. Efforts were made to quiet the two Indians, and the suggestion that the bet be declared off was freely made. As each man declined to pay the other, this was the final outcome of the affair; but the wagering of such a comparatively large sum over such an insignificant event shows that speculation will always be more or less popular with the average Indian .- St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

PERSONAL AND IMPERSONAL

-The recent reduction is price of aluminium has called renewed attention to the possibilities of the use of aluminium-bronze castings for purposes in which the strength of forged steel without its liability to corrosion are essential. Its price should now be not much above that of ordinary gun

-Every good cook is careful to dispose at once of the water in which meat has been washed. Only a very few hours are necessary to change it into a foul-smelling liquid if the tem-perature is suitable. This change is due to a little plant called bacterium termo. A drop of this putrid material under the microscope reveals many thousands of them, acting under a peculiar vibratile motion.

-Queen Victoria speaks ten languages fluently. The queen's granddaughter-in-law, the German empress, is also clever as a linguist. She surprised her guests at a recent court entertainment by talking Norwegian to one of them who came from that country. She plays the violin very well, and when she and her husband manage to get a quiet evening together, they generally devote it to music.

-"I have read somewhere," caid an early riser, "that we don't eat hash as much as we did, and I have no doubt that is true, but we must still eat some, for I hear occasionally, as I take my morning stroll, issuing out of basement windows the familiar sound of the chopping knife-a sound, I will add, not unpleasant to me, for while hash may not be an extremely fashionable dish, I am free to say that good hash I like."-N. Y. Sun.

-Dvorak's negro symphony, which is made up of negro melodies and which he wrote while rusticating last summer at the little Bohemian settlement Big Bargains at at Spillville, Ia., has been enthusiastically received in London. The great composer says that in all that relates to melody and to temperament the negroes are natural musicians, but that it will take many generations of culture to develop their intellects to the point of appreciating the higher and larger forms of music.

-Daniel Webster once sat for hit portrait to the late G. P. A. Healy and the senator's remark when he surveyed the completed picture became one of the artist's favorite anecdotes in after years. "I think," said Webster, as he ooked at his counterfeit presentment, that is a face I have often shaved." Healy found Andrew Jackson a disagreeable and unwilling "subject," and he compensated himself by painting Old Hickory with absolute fidelity to nature, not glossing a single defect The portrait gives Jackson an ugly, savage and pullid face.

Sometimes a man who wants to stop a street car snaps his fingers at the driver or the gripman. It seems as though the gripman would be exasperated by that, but he doesn't appear to be. Some people lift a hand high in the air and hold it there, and some people wave an umbrella of a cane; but the great majority of people have discovered that for all practical purposes in stopping a car a toothpick is as good as a fence rail. All that is necessary is to eatch the driver's eye. It isn't necessary to shove a house on the track in front of him.

HARPER'S WERKLY is a pictorial history of the times. It presents every important event promptly, accurately, and exhaustively in illistration and descriptive text of the highest order

The manner in which, during 1895, it has treated the Chicago Railway Strikes and the Chino-Japanese War, and the amount of light it was able to throw on Korea the instant attention was directed to that little-known country, are examples of its almost boundless resources. Julian Ralph, the distinguished writer and correspondent, has been sent to the seat of war, and there joined by C. D. Weldon, the well-known American artist, now for many years resident in Japan, who has been engaged to co-operate with Mr. Ralph in sending to Hanners's Weekny exclusive information and illustration.

PRE'S WERKINY exclusive information and illustration.

During 1800 every vital question will be discussed with vigor and without prejudice in the editorial columns, rnd also in special articles by the nighest authorities in each department. Portraits of the men and women who are making history, and powerful and caustic political cartoons, will continue to be characteristic features. This Busy World, with its keen and kindly comment on the lesser doings of the day, will remain a regular department.

The Simpletons, a new novel by Thomas Hardy, will be begun in the December Number, 1834, and continued to November, 1835. Whoever may be one's favorite among English novelists, it will be conceded by all critics that Thomas Hardy stands foremost as a master artist in fiction, and The Simpletons may be expected to arouse enthusiasm not infeator in degree to that which has marked Thiny—the most successful story of the year. Another leading feature will be the Peisonal Excollections of Joan of Arc. by the Sieur Louis de Conte, Her Page and Secretary, under which guise the most popular of living American imagazine writers will present the story of the Maid of Orleans. In the January Number will appear a profusely illustrated paper on Charleston and The Carollans, the first of a series of Southern Papers.

Northern Africa is attracting more attention than at any other time since it was the seat of empires. The next volume of Hamper's Magazine will contain four illustrated articles on this region, and three of them will depict the present life there. Julian Ralph will prepare for the Magazing a series of eight stories, depicting typical phases of Chinkes Lafe and Manneus. Resides the long stories, there will begin in the January Number the first chapters of A There-Paur Novelerre, by Richard Harding Davis—the longest work yet attempted by this writer. Complete short stories by popular writers will continue to be a feature of the Magazine.
